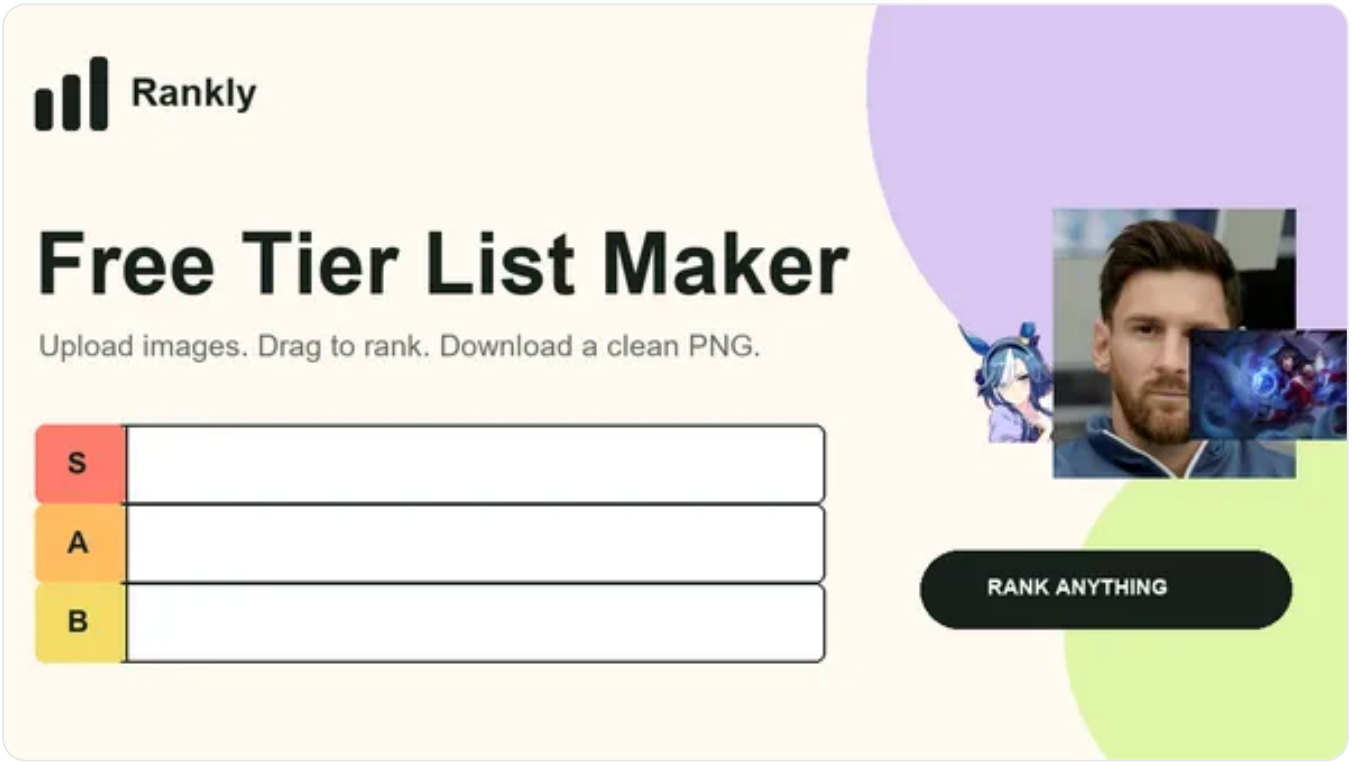
Free Tier List Maker

Create shareable image rankings in your browser with drag-and-drop tiers, template options, and PNG export.



About

Free Tier List Maker is a tier list maker for creating image rankings in minutes. You can upload your own pictures or start from a ready-made template, drag items into custom tiers, rename tier labels, and export the result as a PNG without creating an account.

What is Free Tier List Maker

Free Tier List Maker is a browser-based tier list maker for building visual rankings from images and templates. It lets you create a ranking board, place items into custom tiers, and download the finished layout as a PNG. The site positions itself as a free online

The app supports both custom uploads and template-driven starting points. That means you can build a personal list from your own JPG, PNG, or WebP files, or open a themed editor for topics such as Pokémon, Marvel Rivals, DC movies, Genshin Impact, Honkai: Star Rail, Zenless Zone Zero, League of Legends, fast food, and more.

Key features

Free Tier List Maker focuses on fast visual ranking rather than account-based project management.

- Upload image files from your device and sort them into tiers.
- Use ready-made starter libraries for popular fandoms and formats.
- Drag and drop items into tier rows in the live editor.
- Rename tier labels to match your own ranking system.
- Download the finished tier board as a PNG for sharing.
- Work without sign-up, which makes it useful for quick one-off lists.
- Keep uploaded images in the browser during the session, according to the site's how-it-works section.
- Choose from large starter sets, including a Pokémon template with 1,025 entries and other themed libraries such as 141 Uma Musume portraits or 191 League of Legends champions.

The product is broader than a single fandom template. It acts as a general online ranking board for games, movies, music, sports, food, and other categories where a visual comparison makes sense.

How to use it

Using this tier list maker is straightforward and follows a three-step flow.

- Upload images or open a template.
  - Add your own images from your device, or pick a topic starter such as Pokémon, HSR, or Fast Food.
  - The site indicates support for JPG, PNG, and WebP files.

limit may vary by editor view.

Sort items into tiers.

Drag each image into the tier you want.

The live editor shows default tier rows such as S, A, B, C, and D.

You can click a tier label to rename it and adapt the structure to your own scale.

Export and share.

Once the ranking is complete, download it as a PNG.

The output is described as a crisp image suitable for sharing.

Because no sign-up is required, you can build and export a list in one session.

If you do not have images ready, the site also suggests trying a random showcase template, which can help you start from an existing ranked set instead of a blank board.

Who it is for

Free Tier List Maker is a good fit for anyone who needs a visual sorting tool without a complex workflow.

- Fans making character or franchise rankings for games, anime, and movies.
- Creators who want a fast PNG tier chart for social posts, chats, or community polls.
- People comparing food chains, sports teams, or other real-world categories.
- Users who want a no-account tier list generator for one-off projects.
- Communities that need a ready-made list format, such as Pokémon GO, Pokémon Showdown, or role-based League of Legends rankings.

It is especially useful when the ranking depends on images rather than text fields, since the interface is built around dragging visual cards into tier rows.

What to know before you use it

This tier list maker is useful for quick visual exports, but there are a few practical limits to keep in mind.

The site says uploaded images stay in your browser, which suggests a local workflow, but it does not provide a detailed privacy policy in the scraped text.

The site does not describe collaboration features, cloud saving, or account-based project history in the provided material.

It is built for image ranking, not for spreadsheet-style scoring, statistical comparison, or long-form notes.

Template counts and upload limits are not fully consistent across all visible text, so confirm the current editor limit if you plan a very large list.

For official franchise names, character rosters, or game metadata, the template library is convenient, but it is not a substitute for an authoritative source when accuracy matters.

If you want a quick way to build and export a visual ranking board, Free Tier List Maker is a practical choice. If you need persistent storage, team editing, or source-verified data, use a dedicated account-based tool or an official database instead.
